ARRIVAL OF THE "OCEANIC" AT YOKOHAMA.

The O. & O. S. Oceanic is about to leave this port for Liverpool to undergo certain necessary additions and repairs after the hard work she has done on the line between San Francisco and Hongkong. This fine vessel, finding no competitors in speed, has taken to beating her own passage, though probably Captain Metcalfe, animated by the wish to deprive Captain Parrish of his laurels, was determined to outdo all that had been done before. On December 28th, 1876, the Oceanic arrived in San Francisco from Hongkong and Yokohama in the unparalleled short passage of 14 days, 15 hours and 20 minutes from the last-named port. Very nearly three years have elapsed since this remarkable performance, and during that time the steamer has been in constant work; long voyages tell very much upon hull, machinery and boilers of most vessels, but seem to affect the Oceanic so little that the determination to send the ship home for "repairs" must be a joke. Leaving Yokohama at 5 a.m. on the 18th August, the Oceanic was lucky in the matter of weather, having nothing but moderate southerly winds and smooth sea all through the passage. Off Point Reyes she was detained two hours in a dense fog, but Fort Point was passed at 5.15 p.m. on the 26th August, concluding the passage in 14 days, 5 hours and 45 minutes, or 9 hours 35 minutes less than the passage in December, 1876. We should mention that the total steaming time from Hongkong via Amoy and Yokohama to San Francisco on the last occasion, was 474 hours.

The return of this favourite steamer will be welcome, for her reputation among the travelling public is deservedly great for speed and sea-going qualities, and the courtesy and affability of Captain Metcalfe and all his officers are well known and appreciated.

The Oceanic is to proceed to Liverpool via the Suez Canal, a circumstance which offers an excellent opportunity for a run to Europe. The passage money to Liverpool is fixed at the very moderate figure of $800.—Japan Gazette, Oct. 4.

SHANGHAI.

(News.)

The British barque Oscar Vidal, Captain Robinson, belonging to Messrs. Nils Möller and Co., has made the passage from Nagasaki in forty-eight hours. She left that port on the 1st inst., and arrived at Woosung at noon on the 3rd, having had fresh northerly winds throughout the passage.

The M.M. steamer Tigre was taken down to Woosung yesterday (6th), in order to avoid all possible chance of detention by the Woosung Bar on Saturday next, the day for departure of the mail for Europe. It is certainly becoming a pretty state of affairs, when a mail not to be stopped for want of water on a river bar, has to be sent nearly fourteen miles from her port of landing! When will somebody move earnestly and perseveringly in this matter? It is impossible for the Press to say more than that it is a long, strong and steady pull together on the part of the Ministers of the different nationalities at Peking, and an unmistakable showing to Prince Kung and Company that the bar is by no means the "Heavenly barrier" they have managed to make it appear for so many years past. Never before this season has the Woosung Bar so forcibly shown its blockading powers—and now, therefore, is the time to agitate, and that unceasingly.

Mr C. J. Ashley, sailmaker and chief engineer of the Fire Department, is now engaged moving his two-story, four-roomed, wooden frame-house from the corner of Miller and Boone Roads, Hongkew, to a site on the road leading to the rifle butts. Not a particle of furniture has been removed from the rooms, and though the house has been raised from the position it has occupied, we believe, since 1863, and removed half-way to its destination, the plastering has not cracked, the pictures have remained on the walls; and while in transit the family have used the house continually. Launch ways are used as the means of progression, and not the American system of rollers, and we believe that this is the first time anything of the kind has been attempted at Shanghai, and the mere novelty of the thing alone deserves that it should be successful.

(Courier.)

A Volunteer at the ranges this morning made some excellent shooting. His score showed 94 points out of a possible 105. He made eight consecutive bullseyes, his best shooting being at the longest range. We record with deep feelings of regret the decease, on the 5th inst., of the Right Reverend William Armstrong Russell, D.D., Bishop in North China. Dr. Russell was born in 1821, graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, and sailed for China in 1847. In 1872 he was consecrated Bishop in Westminster Abbey. The late Bishop was a wise and judicious pastor of the Church of Christ, and secured the warm affection and sincere respect of all those who had any relations with him. He was an indefatigable missionary, and a diligent translator. The greater part of the New Testament and portions of the Old, as well as the Book of Common Prayer, were rendered by him into colloquial Chinese of the Chekiang province. Bishop Russell has everywhere and always secured the regard of the foreign residents in China, and by the natives he was revered and beloved.

Quite a number of visitors are partaking (Sept. 24) of the hospitality of the British Legation, at Peking, including General Donovan and Mrs. Donovan; and Admiral Cote and suite are expected.

SUPREME COURT.

IN ADMIRALTY.

(Before the Chief Justice Sir John Smale, and Capt. Thomsett, R.N., and Capt. MacMurdo, Marine Surveyor, Nautical Assessors.)

DAMAGES FOR A JUNK RUN DOWN.

SIN KING LOY—Promoveat.

RABER—Impugnat.

Hon. J. Russell, Acting Queen's Advocate, instructed by Mr E. Sharp, appeared for the Promoveat; Mr Hayllar, Q.C., instructed by Messrs Brereton and Wotton, for the Impugnat.

In reply to His Lordship, who asked whether the Counsel could not agree to some specific issue.

Mr Russell said the question was simply one of lights. The impugnat said the junk had no light; he was prepared to prove that they had a light on the foremast.

His Lordship: But as the junk was run down you have no post facto proof.

Mr Russell: Precisely.

His Lordship: Do you say the Gustav had no lights?

Mr Russell: No. We cannot say that, but we say we never saw them until we got on board the Gustav.

Mr Hayllar: There is a great discrepancy, too, as to the course the junk was taking. We say the junk's course was exactly the other way, or as nearly as possible the other way, to that laid down by the other side.

Mr Russell: The course of the junk was about N.E. by E. sailing freely. In the 13th paragraph of our Preliminary Act we state that the Gustav struck the junk on the stern on the port side, right on the corner; the other side say that the foremast of the junk first struck the Gustav's joboom gyves on the starboard side.

All the witnesses were then removed from Court, the parties to the suit being in an adjoining room so that their counsel could confer with them, in view of the impossibility of a non-nautical man appreciating the points of detail as they might arise.

His Lordship said that as Mr Hayllar had not given his assent to these points which had been mentioned bringing the whole matter before the Court, they would have to go into the whole case. This would have been prevented had there been pleadings.

The Preliminary Acts had been before the assessors since the Court sat, and they had read and compared them. The respective Counsel had exchanged their preliminary acts after the original papers were opened by the Court.

Mr Russell remarked that as they had only this minute seen the papers of the other side and the Counsel on the other side had only seen his case, it was almost impossible for them to agree at once on the issues that should be submitted to the Court.

His Lordship: Then we will go through the whole case.

Mr Russell then stated his case. This case, as the Court would have seen from the Preliminary Acts in its hands, was brought by the master and owner of the fishing junk Loy Hop, of 890 piculs capacity, against the German barque Gustav, which, on the night of the 21st September, a quarter of an hour before midnight, ran into her, sank her and destroyed her. It would be proved by the evidence he would lay before the Court, that this junk was fishing in company with another junk, between the Lamma and Lin Ting.

Mr Hayllar: We put the position a little to the S.E. of Lamma; between that and Patul.

Mr Russell, continuing, said that while these two boats were fishing, the man who was steering all of a sudden heard a noise as of a rushing of water right behind the junk; and on looking out he saw a large ship right upon them; the bows of the ship coming quite on to the stern of the junk. All the people on board the junk were called up. There were 7 adults, 4 men and 3 women, and 6 children, 3 girls and 3 boys; in all 12 souls. The grown-up people were on deck; the children below. It had been a wet night and it was fiercely cold. The master was making a meal of fish conge to give to the men, who had been very hard worked, before they turned in. They immediately on this alarm being made, made a great noise and shouted to those on board the ship. The junk at this time had a lamp burning; she was a two-masted junk and the lamp was on the main mast; a round clear lamp burning bright. Both the junks had lamps, as it was necessary for them to keep clear of each other while they were fishing together. The other junk was at this time a little on the starboard bow of the Loy Hop. Immediately the noise was made the women went down and brought up the children on deck; almost immediately after that the ship they had seen, which turned out to be the Gustav, struck the junk on the stern on the port side, right on the corner. The barque then rushed along the port side of the junk and got her bowsprit entangled in the sails of the junk. This held the junk up for a time and allowed of all the people on board being saved. They state that the men and women scrambled up the chains and got on board the Gustav, bringing the children safely with them. They also state that when they first got on board they saw no European whatever; the only person they saw was a Chinaman, who turned out to be the cook of the Gustav. He helped some of them to get up there. After all those belonging to the junk were on board, then two Europeans came along. The wrecked people told the captain that they wanted a boat to be lowered so that they might save some of their effects from the junk, but nothing was done to let them secure anything. Afterwards the junk was seen to be on fire; it was supposed that the sails had fallen down and had been set fire to by the fire the master had been cooking the conge with. Although he was able to prove in this case that the junk had a light, as a question of law he would put it that it was not necessary that the junk should have a light. It was the duty of the Gustav coming on to their stern to keep clear of the junk. The 17th rule of the Road at Sea was that "any vessel overtaking another vessel shall keep out of the way of the said last-mentioned vessel." This rule applied to all vessels, steamers and sailing ships alike.

His Lordship: I see that will be altered by the new rules, which come in force on the 1st September next year.

Mr Russell next quoted from Boyd's Merchant Shipping Laws, to the effect that there is no precise rule laid down as to what should be done where one vessel overtakes another. The locality and the whole circumstances of the collision had to be considered. That was in Boyd's notes on the Shipping Laws. There was a case in which two steamers were coming down the Hudson River, their courses differing some eight points (in this case it was said the courses of the junk and the barque differed by some five points); they were held to come within this rule by the American Court, and the hindmost held to blame. It was laid down there that the onus of proving that she was not to blame lay on the hindmost vessel. It might be asked why did the people on the junk not see the steamer's light before she was upon them. They were engaged in watching for the other junk with which they were fishing; and she was on the starboard side; the steerman and also the man on the look-out had their attention devoted to her.

Mr Russell then called the following evidence:—
Sin King Loy: I am master of a fishing junk, the Loy Hop, and sole owner. She was a two-masted boat of 890 piculs. On the 11th September I sailed from Macao. We got to Cheung Chow and remained some days, because there was wind blowing. I recollect the 21st of September. There were twelve persons on board including myself. We left Cheung Chow on the 16th September. For several days between the 16th and 21st we were fishing. There were other junks fishing, but they were a long way off. We were fishing in pairs; there was another junk with us. We stopped fishing at 9 o'clock on the night of the 21st September. We sailed eastward, making for Hongkong; we got as far as Lin Ting on the end of the Lamma. Our course was to northward of east. I do not understand the foreign compass. Shewn a diagram of a foreign compass, witness places his junk's head at N. E. by E. I was making for Victoria. There were hills between the light-house and junk. I first saw the light-house about dusk. Sometimes I saw the light, and sometimes it was shaded by the hills. I was coming in by Green Island side, the west. Shortly before midnight the steerman called my attention to something. I was preparing congee for the men. He said, "There is a large ship sailing up." I then ran to the stern of the junk and found it was so. I was sitting making the congee about the main-mast. She was only about 5 fathoms off (about 60 feet). The steerman was standing at the helm, on the port side. There were seven or eight women and sailors on deck. The children were asleep down below. I called out to the ship to alter her course. She soon came up upon us, striking us on the stern port side; (manner of collision explained by accompanying models). I called out "save life" as soon as we were struck. We were struck on the port quarter of the stern by the Gustav's bows. The ship passed along the junk's side and the bowsprit got entangled in the rigging. The port side of the stern was all broken. The women called the children up. Our bows went under. There was a Chinaman in the starboard bows of the ship. I called all hands to come up, and they did so. We all got on to the barque. Afterwards the sails fell down over the fire and the masts broke. The foremast fell over and the lantern on it was gone. The bows sunk and the water came up to the mast. I said to the Chinaman on the barque "Ask the Captain to lend me a boat to go and get our trunks." He went to the Captain. When he returned he told me they would not send a boat. This was just when we went on board. Next morning they brought us to Hongkong. About the time it would take to eat two or three meals of rice (about two hours), I saw the large fire. The only lights on the junk were the large fire cooking the congee, and three lanterns, one on each side, and one on the foremast. The latter was burning; I lighted it myself about dusk. It burned brightly. The wind was northerly a little to the west. This was outside Hsiao-mai, at the end of the Lamma. It would take about four hours with a fair wind to come from the place of collision to Victoria by Green Island. We were not sailing very fast. Our sails were only half up. When I got on board the barque I only saw one Chinaman at first. After we were all on board I saw two foreigners coming towards me. Every one on the junk called out "save life" when the collision occurred.

Cross-examined by Mr Hayllar: We were sailing eastward outside Ling Ting. We did not look that night. We raised our sails and sailed a straight course. Cape D'Agulair light can be seen all the way from Ling Ting, but at the time of the collision a part of the Lamma Island shaded the light. I was cutting up the fish. We were not all asleep; we had not worked very hard that day. While sitting down cooking I saw was towards the bows of the vessel. It was not very dark; we could see the stars; there were occasional showers. We were not guiding the ship by Cape D'Agulair light. The sails had not been turned. There are two ways, a broad and a narrow channel; I wished to come in by the open and could come in any direction. We had not turned. I put up the lantern as soon as it was dark. I put it up with my own hands. I bought the lantern in Macao. The sails were only half up. They were not set. The lantern was hoisted up to the top of the mast, on the port side. The stern of my junk was not very high. The scaffolding at the stern was very high. I do not know whether the steerman was sitting or standing. He could see over the stern either sitting or standing. There is a high stool on which they sit when steering. I called out to the barque to change the course; we also attempted to change, but could not do it in time; we tried to get out of the way, but the vessel did not answer her helm. There was not time, the barque was too near. Fishing boats do not calculate their rate of sailing by the hour. The junk was first struck astern. The barque struck us on the stern, and then ran along the port side, turning the junk a little over. The mast broke over, but I did not see the foremast nor the light. This was before we crumbled up on the barque. The mast fell over on the starboard side. I lost sight of the foremast and the light in the collision. I am sure that the fire I saw was my junk burning. We did not receive any assistance by ropes from the people in the barque. I declare there were no ropes thrown to us; the Chinaman gave us his hand to help us up, that was all the help we got. The Captain asked us to go back to our junk. I said she could not hold anybody. The other fishing junk was close at hand; we were not asked to go on board on her. When I went on board the vessel I could not see the junk.

Re-examined:—I have seen the burnt masts picked up at Yow-mah-nee, and I know them to be mine. There was no foreign or seen on the barque, when we went on board, only the Chinaman. There were no junks near us except the one that had been fishing with us. There were no others in view. I have seen our companion since and she had no appearance of fire.

To Capt. Thomsett:—I did not see the other junk follow us, but I know she did as she arrived next day. We had completed our fishing at 9 o'clock, and were making for Victoria. We sailed slowly. When the bowsprit of the Gustav got foul of the rigging it kept the junk from sinking. It was cut away, but I do not know by whom. The Chinaman helped me up, and then he and I assisted the others. The collision took place between one and two hundred fathoms from the land. The lamp was lighted at dusk, and was trimmed again only a short time before the collision.

Court adjourned at 1 o'clock till 2.30 foriffin and to allow the assessors to attend to such offices duties as were pressing.

On resuming,
Kwok Ayon, who was steering the junk at the time the collision took place, was the first witness examined. He generally corroborated the first witness with regard to the way in which the barque ran into the junk and as to there being no Europeans seen on deck when they got on board the Gustav, and as to no rope or help being given to any of the junk's crew except the hand of the Chinese cook. He added that none of the twelve people who were rescued had anything to eat from midnight till noon next day; they asked for rice at daylight and were told there was none; at noon they got a few biscuits, and there was some tea also there. The children were treated in the same way. They had nothing to eat for twelve hours after they got on board. He also corroborated the master of the junk as to the light being burning brightly, and generally as to the whole circumstances of the collision.

Cross-examined, he explained that the junk was making for shelter as quickly as she could as she expected a typhoon that night. He denied as strongly as the first witness that any European helped those who were in the junk to get on board. There were no ropes thrown over to help them. Only the one Chinaman gave them a helping hand. He went down on the anchor hanging from the cat-head, starboard side, and held out his hand to help two of them up, they in their turn helping up the others.

Sin Ayan was the last witness examined. He also was one of the crew of the junk, and in a general way corroborated the evidence of the master.

At 4.20 the Court adjourned to Wednesday at 10 a.m., when Mr Hayllar will state the case for the impugnat and call evidence. He has only four witnesses, and as, in to-day's proceedings, the first witness will probably break the back of the day's hearing, it is expected that the case will be finished on that day. There are some 14 or 15 cases before the Summary Jurisdiction Court, so that his Lordship could not fix any hour to-morrow at which he would, of a certainty, be ready to go on with this case.

NEWS IN ADVANCE OF THE MAIL.

We are enabled to give, through the courtesy of a subscriber, from the Japan Gazette of the 3rd inst., brought on by the Nigata Maru, the following late telegrams brought from America to Yokohama by the Oceanic:—

TELEGRAMS.

London, Sept. 8.—A despatch from Calcutta says: From imperfect information obtainable, there seems to be good reason to favor the view that the disaffection has not spread all over Afghanistan, but that the affair is a local element, which will speedily disappear when the British troops arrive at Cabul. The Government, apparently, does not doubt the fidelity of the Ameer. Badaah Kahn's adhesion to the British cause is valuable as removing what might have been a serious obstacle to the advance from Kuram to Cabul. The fact that the insurgents did not wait until the winter snows had blocked the passes, or even until the British had evacuated Candahar, indicates that the rising was wholly unpremeditated. The Kuram column, which will be first to move on Cabul, is in excellent condition, not having suffered from cholera. It consists of the second battalion of the Eighth Regiment, Sixty-seventh Regiment, the Seventy-second and Ninety-second Bihanders, two mountain and two field batteries, one battery of horse artillery, and three cavalry and one regiment of pioneers. The movement by the Khyber Pass is intended to support the main advance by way of the Peshawar Pass.

The Viceroy of India telegraphs as follows: Advice from Ali Kheyl, dated Saturday last, says that Badaah Khan saw the corpses of Major Cavagnari and members of his staff and escort. The party made a very stubborn defence. The loss of the rioters killed in the fight is estimated at over one hundred.

London, September 10.—Major J. Connolly, British political agent, telegraphs officially, from Ali Kheyl that intelligence has been received that the Ameer is terribly perplexed at the reproach to his name; that he is in privacy with a few faithful Sardars, and that he is sure to come personally and apologize to the Government.

Gholam Hassan, a native Envoy of the Indian Government, was expected to arrive at Cabul on the 7th inst., and the Ameer intended making excuses to him. An official telegram as to the loss by the mob was mutilated, and it may read 210 or 240. The latter figure is impossible.

It is asserted that no doubt exists in the India Office that the outbreak has assumed larger proportions than was at first supposed.

A despatch from Labera says that General Massey is pushing on for Cabul, regardless of the difficulties of procuring transportation. General Roberts is also believed to be making a dash for Cabul.

Simla, September 12.—Yatoo Khan has written to the Governor of Candahar, informing him of the massacre at Cabul and ordering him to follow the advice of the British authorities.

The Government has sanctioned the construction of a railway in the Bolan Pass.

London, Sept. 12.—The Times points out that the Government of India is systematically concealing news concerning military instructions. Rumours, which are plentiful, must be accepted with reserve. All that is certain is that the plan of operations successfully followed last Autumn will be repeated now. Three columns will follow the same routes, starting, however, from a scientific frontier, instead of from the cantonment which in 1878 marked the boundary. The Khyber and Candahar columns will probably be mainly confined to making demonstrations at holding marauding tribes in awe. The troops of the centre column are at this moment being pushed up from Kohat to Kuram, so that in a few days we may expect to hear that the whole force has in the valley to the east of P. Iwar, has been transferred to the western slope. When once the position of Shurtargardan Pass has been occupied in force and rendered impregnable, a forward movement will be made to Kush, about fourteen miles distant. Provisions of all sorts are to be obtained around Kush, and it will probably be converted into an extensive depot. Gen. Roberts' subsequent operations must, in a great measure, depend upon the temper of the Hill tribes and the news he may receive from Cabul. If the Hill men cooperate with him, or even remain neutral, a rapid advance with a small force is feasible. If, on the contrary, the current rumours are true, and the Ghilzais and others have joined the revolt, Gen. Roberts will be compelled to hold the chain of communication in great force before venturing to advance. The Ghilzais are the most powerful tribe in Afghanistan. Their territory extends 600 miles in length by 30 miles in breadth, and their fighting strength is 50,000 well-armed men.

London, Sept. 12.—The Viceroy of India telegraphs a sketch of the military arrangements, under date of September 11th: General Roberts will have 6,500 men, consisting of two brigades of infantry and one brigade of cavalry. This force takes possession of the country from Shurtargardan Pass to Cabul. From Shurtargardan Pass to Thull the country will be held by 4,000 men, under General Gordon. The Khyber line from Peshawar to Ghundamuk will be protected by 6,600 men, in addition to the Peshawar garrison. This force will provide a movable column to hold Jaggalak and communicate with Cabul. The Reserves at Peshawar and Rawul Pindi will number 5,000 men. The above force will represent a division capable of meeting all opposition. It will have its headquarters at Cabul, and an army line to the base at Peshawar. It will have a second line by way of Shurtargardan till that Pass is closed, after which General Roberts must look for maintenance to Cabul and Peshawar. The Khyber column is in active organization. Troops are now advancing to occupy Dikka. Guides are pushing on to Basawal.

A correspondent at Allahabad says the orders are to occupy Cabul with or without the Ameer's consent.

London, Sept. 12.—A correspondent at Chaman says that an important rumor is in circulation to the effect that intimation of the pending danger to the Embassy at Cabul reached Candahar from Herat and was telegraphed to the Indian Government, but too late to avert the calamity. All reports point to the Ameer's brother as the prime mover in the outbreak.

Havana, Sept. 12.—An association of planters are asking King Alfonso for permission to import yearly from 25,000 to 30,000 Chinamen, whom they consider best adapted to endure the climate and fatigue of Cuban field labor, and to bring from Spain and the Canary Islands 10,000 workmen, continuing importation in this manner until the number shall have reached 400,000 men. These will be paid their passage and be supported for ten days after arrival, during which time it is considered that they will find work. The association calculates that the expense of bringing 400,000 men here yearly will amount to $3,000,000, which it is proposed, shall be raised by general taxation, as the immigration would benefit the whole country. The recent treaty between Spain and China prohibits the immigration of Chinamen by contract.

Havana, Sept. 12.—An insurrectionary movement at Santiago de Cuba was begun by about 100 men, mostly colored, raising a revolt in the streets. After killing some policemen, they took to the woods and mountains.

London, September 12.—All the Directors of the West of England and South Wales District Bank except Payne have been committed for trial for publishing false balance sheets.

Vienna, Sept. 12.—Advice from Alexandria represent that the King of Abyssinia claims the whole of the strip of coast held to Egypt in 1877, and also several towns and the territory on which they are situated. If his demands are rejected, war is apprehended. Gordon Pasha has been empowered to offer the King the ports of Ath, Duram and Tachilly, on the Red Sea, provided he renounces all other claims and concludes a lasting treaty of peace with Egypt. If the King refuses, General Gordon is to assume the offensive.

London, September 12.—The earthenware manufacturers at Hanley will renew contracts with the workmen only at ten per cent. reduction of wages. The masters oppose arbitration, which the men desire. Sixty thousand workers are affected.

London, September 10.—A despatch from Bombay, this evening, says the greatest excitement has been caused by a report that the Ameer of Afghanistan has been killed by the rebels, or, according to another version, that he has committed suicide.

Madrid, Sept. 10.—The Minister of the Colonies has agreed with the Bank of Spain for a very large advance to meet the expense of the reinforcement of the troops in Cuba. The reinforcement will include artillery. Spanish politicians express much apprehension about the news from Cuba, but only a small group of Radical members of the Cortes would approve a system of self-government similar to that of Canada, which it is understood would be the solution favored by the Havana Liberals. The Commission on the subject of reforms in Cuba will meet on the 16th. If the conditions of the colonial treasury will permit, the Government intends that the reforms shall include a reduction of the export duties of Cuba and of the sugar duties of Spain.

Important despatches are daily passing between the Spanish Cabinet and the Captain-General of Cuba. General Martinez Campos is thoroughly alive to the gravity of the agitation. Several newspapers have strongly urged the Government to give an explanation relative to Cuba. It is expected in political circles that the Constitutional Party will shortly come into power.

Madrid, September 10.—The Political denies that the Government intends raising the state of siege in the Basque provinces.

London, September 10.—Mitchell Henry, Home Rule Member of Parliament for Galway, speaking at Clifden, Ireland, at a meeting numbering 8,000 persons, on the land question, declared that if the Government left the people without relief for the winter, they would hold them responsible before Europe for a repetition of the Irish famine.

London, Sept. 11.—A despatch from St. Petersburg, says the newspaper war against Germany has subsided.

The Hague, Sept. 11.—The news from Acheen is of a favourable character. The Dutch expeditionary columns have been disbanded. Several of the native chiefs have submitted to the demands of the Dutch.

London, Sept. 11.—Notices of 5 per cent. reduction in the wages of operatives have been posted by nearly all of the Wigan cotton spinners. The reduction affects seven thousand operatives.

London, Sept. 11.—A number tenant farmers, selected as delegates from England and Ireland, sailed on the steamer Peruvian, which left Liverpool to-day for Quebec and Montreal. The delegation goes to America under the auspices of the Canadian Government, to investigate and report to their constituents the advantages which the Dominion presents as a field for settlement.

Lahore, Sept. 11.—Shikarpur merchants trading with Central Asia, report that the revolt in Cabul is due to Russian intrigues. Russian agents have been most active at Herat. They have for some months urged the Ameer's brother to declare against him, promising the support of Russian regiments. They were charged by the Ameer's brother with being the cause of the revolt against the Ameer and the English.

Bombay, Sept. 11.—Serious riots are proceeding in Cabul, and many traders and citizens have been killed. Messages have reached Candahar from Cabul, urging a general rising against the British on the 15th inst. Similar messages have been despatched to other Afghan cities. The frontier tribes are still quiet.

London, Sept. 11.—The rumour of the death of the Ameer of Afghanistan is discredited in official quarters.

Constantinople, Sept. 10.—The Porte has received complaints against Midhat Pasha. It is stated that Minister Layard's visit to Asia is in connection with this matter.

London, Sept. 10.—Cotton operatives at Ashton and neighbourhood held the largest meeting to-day ever known in that district, and unanimously decided to strike to-morrow. Operatives will not have to resort to the funds of the Trades Union for a fortnight.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—A telegram from the Governor of Smolensk, of the 9th, announces a great fire in the town of Nirzuma, 100 miles from Smolensk. Two hundred houses and the prison were burning. Assistance has been sent from Smolensk.

London, Sept. 10.—At Middlesboro, an iron manufacturing locality, an order was received from the United States for 60,000 tons of pig iron.

London, Sept. 10.—Lord Napier is reported ill at Kissingen, Germany.

London, Sept. 10.—The colliers in West Bromwich decide to ask an increase of wages in South Staffordshire and Worcestershire
